

It Takes All Sorts

Frank's President is abducted by Belgian agents.

Woty has more to say about the nature of idiotarianism, including a discussion of whether the Pope is an idiotarian.

Apple Computer have announced some great new hardware and software.

Scrappleface has two characteristically trenchant arguments disguised as humour. Pity he's opposed to abortion.

James Randi rightly castigates the Canadian province of British Columbia for giving official credence to "Traditional Chinese Medicine".

All of them Setting the World to Rights, in their own way.

British Columbia

BC is an interesting place - its main exports are marijuana, timber, and gas (in that order); its main imports are heroin and unemployed Newfies.

The move to officially recognize "Traditional Chinese Medicine" is probably a consequence of the great increase in BC's Chinese population in the years since Thatcher munished Hong Kong. However, this blog demonstrates its unfamiliarity with BC politics in its assumption that the government is capable of giving credence to anything.
